I have called PETA many times over the years for help with my dogs, and the workers are always happy to help. They amputated the toe of my dog Shimara in the PETA clinic after her nail became painfully ingrown. She felt so much better after she recovered from the surgery that she was dancing around like a ballerina. PETA also was there for me when it was time to put my sweet Shimara to sleep, and I am so grateful that they were able to help me end her suffering. When my dog Isabelle stopped eating, PETA offered advice and pointed me toward help. It turned out that Isabelle was suffering liver failure, but thanks to PETA, Isabelle improved.

I wouldn't have been able to afford any of this at a regular veterinarian. We are lucky to have PETA in our community.
