

PEOPLE FOR THE ETHICAL TREATMENT OF ANIMALS

Dear Barbara,

PETA US has just released never-before-seen footage of experiments on monkeys locked in a government laboratory—and however you feel about the use of animals in experiments, these studies can only be considered useless and cruel. We're writing to you because the experimenters have named many of the monkeys after villains in the James Bond series—desecrating a beloved film franchise. Specifically, there are monkeys called Oddjob, Goldfinger, Jaws, Le Chiffre, Blofeld, and Nick Nack. There's even one named for singer Sam Smith, who, of course, wrote and recorded the Spectre theme song.

Experiments are always a nightmare for animals—but these tests are actually designed to terrify monkeys. After their skulls have been sawed open and bits of their brains have been sucked out or toxins have been injected into their brains, they're deposited into cramped cages and terrorized with rubber snakes and spiders. Monkeys, like most primates, innately fear these animals. The experimenter says that she's studying human mental illness, but 30 years of these experiments have never helped even one person.

If you would consider signing a public letter to the director of the National Institutes of Health, it would be so helpful. Please let me know what you think. Thank you very much.

Best regards,

Iona Kirby
PETA

PO Box 70315
London N1P 2RG
United Kingdom
+44 (0) 20 7837 6327
+44 (0) 20 7923 6242 (fax)

Info@peta.org.uk

PEOPLE FOR THE ETHICAL
TREATMENT OF ANIMALS (PETA)
FOUNDATION – a charitable company limited by guarantee, with its registered office at
Cannon Place, 78 Cannon Street,
London EC4N 6AF.
Registered in England and Wales
as charity number 1056453, company number 3135903.

Affiliates

- PETA US
- PETA Asia
- PETA India
- PETA France
- PETA Australia
- PETA Germany
- PETA Netherlands