

MISSING

HAVE YOU SEEN
THIS CALF?

© Jo-Anne McArthur/We Animals

Female cows aren't milk machines—they produce milk only after being pregnant. On dairy farms, cows are forcibly impregnated on a "rape rack" (an industry term). Mother cows carry their babies for nine months, just as human mothers do—but their babies are torn away from them almost immediately after birth and sent to be slaughtered for veal or added to the dairy herd to produce more milk. Most moms will never see their babies again.

DITCH DAIRY CRUELTY: DRINK SOY OR ALMOND MILK!

PETA