

PETA's 2023 Liberty Broadband Shareholder Meeting Question

My name is Melanie Johnson, and I have a question on behalf of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, or PETA.

While Alaska Airlines, Chrysler, ExxonMobil, Millennium Hotels and Resorts, and nearly all other major sponsors have cut ties with Alaska's deadly Iditarod dog-sled race, Liberty Broadband's subsidiary GCI continues to sully its reputation by being one of the last remaining holdouts, sponsoring the race to the tune of more than $250,000 every year.

More than 150 dogs have died while running the Iditarod, not counting those who died during the off-season while chained up outside or those who were killed because they weren't considered fast or fit enough. This year's race ended in controversy when the winner was caught on video dragging exhausted dogs—who are no different from those we love and share our homes with—to a race checkpoint.

Instead of spending hundreds of thousands of dollars propping up a dying race, GCI could do its reputation a favor by using these funds to improve its own service. My question is this: When will Liberty Broadband stop funding cruelty to dogs and end GCI's sponsorship of the Iditarod?
