

[Redacted text]

[Redacted text]

[Redacted text]

[Redacted text]

top

previous next

5. Re: What is it like working in high COVID-19 areas

Reply to Group Online

Reply to Sender

Reply to Sender via Email

Apr 10, 2020 1:32 AM
Michelle Irish

I am gutted by the mass euthanasia I've both witnessed and been directed to do.

I am frazzled by the multitude of policy changes in a short period of time, some of which have been complete 180 reversals.

I am uncomfortable having to change in my breakroom which isn't exactly private or secure, because otherwise there would be too many people using the locker room to be in compliance with social distancing.

I am on edge because social distancing has been construed to mean total isolation. If an accident were to occur, I don't know how long it would be before someone happens upon me.

I am angry because my facility decided to put 1/3 of the caretakers on reserve (read: paid leave), while the other 2/3 of us report to work as normal, some of us being assigned additional buildings to make up for the skeletal crew. After hearing from these forums how other facilities